“Political discourse has gotten more partisan and meaner over the last 20 years. People have gotten to the point where they are turned off by paid political advertising, whose sole purpose seems to be tearing their opponents down instead of promoting a vision for addressing problems that face us all.”

— Former U.S. Senator Ben Nighthorse Campbell (R)

- Coloradans want and are ready for a substantive source of information.
- It is time to foster honest discussion among candidates and voters.
- The U.S. Senate race could determine control of the entire Congress.
- The Governor's race is neck-and-neck with the addition of John Hickenlooper.

- Colorado Election 2010:
 - Stimulate discussion of state issues.
 - Debate among candidates.
 - Encourage viewer participation.
 - Non-partisan, mutually respectful discourse.

- Publishers' Advantage Program
- Local news outlets gather viewer questions via print and web for the show.
